Dear Sirs:

I am writing, because I strongly oppose any government intervention regarding smoking in the workplace. I know that if I were to tell everyone that my business was turning into a nonsmoking establishment, not only would I lose my customers but I would also lose my employees.

Just once I would like the government to stay out of my business. I'm doing just fine without you meddling into it and telling me and my customers how to live. It seems that when government has too much time on its hands it finds ways to take it out on the people. President Clinton and Congress are waging war against smokers, and now OSHA has gotten into the act in an intrusive way.

Please be aware that there are many of us who feel the same way. I urge you to reconsider your actions.

Sincerely,

Velta Vance
